About Me

Welcome to Project Midlife!

Hi! I am Felicia, a technology geek by day – crafter, baker, dreamer, listener, reader, writer, thinker, friend, ally, advocate, wife, mother, and grandma the rest of the time! I was born and raised in Chicago but Virginia has been my home for 30+ years. I have the best friends and family on the planet. I have worked in Educational Technology Support for over twenty-five years. I try to remain upbeat and positive as much as I can. I believe laughter is medicine and what you put out to the universe always comes back around to bless you or bite you. I am not religious, but I have a strong belief system around how we should treat each other as human beings. Welcome to my little corner of the world where kindness is king and there are always homemade cookies.

Back to main page.